A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERERS AND MEN WHOSE HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald later. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalp cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and make the dandruff so it doesn't fall until it's dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellow druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp, the Red Cross pharmacy on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that it is the most prominent drug store in this city. secured the Zemo, the clean liquid preparation that kills the germ of disease and Zemo soap to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranteed by druggists everywhere and in Barre by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Robbers of the Soil.

An Iowa farm of something more than eighty acres passed into the hands of a city man on mortgage. He rented it and for the first two or three years the returns were satisfactory. Then he found the dwellings and outbuildings needed repairs which took back some of the profits. He held the land nine years and in that time had six tenants. The last of which harvested a crop of corn that barely was enough to feed his team and pay his own family expenses for the year.

The land was in a community where values ranged around $125 an acre but it cost the owner only about $6,000 under the mortgage. As near as he could estimate his income from the land for the nine years was about $4,000, from which was deducted repairs, taxes, new fencing and other incidentals aggregating about $1,200. This left him a net income of about $2,800. Then he tried to sell the land. Many buyers looked but none bought. They wanted no "corned out" land, they said. Finally along came a young farmer who took it off his hands for $4,000. That left the first man a net income of $900 on his $6,000 investment for nine years.

The greatest agricultural evil of the present day is the tenant farmer. This statement is made by President Henry J. Waters of the Kansas State Agricultural college. The tenant farmer, he declares, is the highwayman of the soil; collectively, a vandal horde that has marched from Maine to the Missouri, laying waste an agricultural empire with the fire of its greed and the sword of its ignorance. His advance guard already is thrown beyond the Big Muddy. Give him time and he will overwhelm the West as he has the East.

The tenant farmer, President Waters says, is the ruin of the country and the menace of the city. He has left in his wake impoverished land, abandoned farms and a train of economic evils that must soon be remedied or grave consequences will follow. The tenant farmer is the man who is chiefly responsible for the increased cost of living, he is the man who has caused American exports to fall off 200 million dollars in three years. He is the man who has reduced our farming area, forced the price of produce land to an abnormal height, and sent droves of sturdy young farmers beyond our borders to the North. President Waters has been investigating the tenant farmer for a long time and he knows his subject, but nothing good of him. He speaks now of the tenant who doesn't farm but merely skins the soil, not the real tenant farmer—the small ten per cent. or so of hustling, ambitious young men, long on industry and short on cash, who get only until they have saved enough to buy a farm of their own. He speaks of the other ninety per cent., the "migratory agricultural vagabonds who follow in the wake of the homeseeker and the homemaker, leaving blight and desolation in their wake."—July Technical Cultural Highwaymen, July Technical Magazine.

The Call of the Road.

"Follow me, and follow me!" the little road is calling;
"I will take you where the snow of apple bloom is falling.
I will lead you to the fields, the greenest and the cleanest—
Where the bending sky above is bluest and serene;
Out of all the city dust and the jangling riot,
Into God's own wonder-land of beauty and of quiet."

"Follow me, and follow me between the flowered hedges,
See the ferns that touch with lace the mossy cliffs and ledges;
Hear the brook that sings and sings to melodies of laughter;
Catch the message of the breeze—of days that shall come after;
Ho, I'll lure your feet afar from all your fears and frettings,
Till your soul is steeped in peace that comes of fair forgettings."

"Come and see the shadows dance when twilight's hush is coming,
Murmur all the lazy words the happy bees are humming;
Revel in the lilac scent the vagrant wind is flinging,
Dream about the roses that the summer-time is bringing—
Sun and shade, and shade and sun, and gold and silver flashing,
Where the whirling butterflies are fluttering and dashing."

"Violets are dancing now, the dogwood trees are whitened
With a wreath of blossoms till the distant wood is brightened
Can't you hear the call of me, made up of love and pity?
What have you with brick and stone and iron of the city?
Come and see the marvel sweet of rolling hill and hollow,
Come and brother with the world. Follow me, and follow!"
—Chicago Evening Post.

BIG BLOWERS LIVE LONG.

Playing Wind Instruments Doesn't Tend to Shorten Life.

Aliments of the heart and lungs have been frequently attributed by pathologists and others to the blowing of wind instruments. It has even been asserted, without any definite foundation in fact, that the cornet, trombone or oboe player is "blowing his lungs away" and will die before his time.

Dr. Forchheimer in his "Prophylaxis and Treatment of International Diseases" shows the fallacy of this belief. He states emphatically that "just as many players of stringed instruments have emphysema as players of wind instruments," and after a long experience of musicians he has come to the conclusion that "neither emphysema nor its predisposition is a result of their occupation."

To determine statistically the effects on longevity of playing upon wind instruments Dr. James F. Rogers consulted Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians" and Champlin's "Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians" and calculated the average age of 100 performers upon wind instruments and of a like number upon stringed instruments. The average length of life of players upon wind instruments was 63.5 years and of players upon stringed instruments 62 years. Of the former 34 per cent reached ages above 70 years.

For the different wind instruments the average ages were as follows: Flute, 61.2 years; oboe, 63 years; bassoon, 63 years; horn, 64.4 years; clarinet, 65.2 years; trumpet and cornet, 66.1 years. It is interesting that the players on wind instruments who exert the greatest intra-pneumatic pressure—namely, performers on the trumpet and cornet—were the longest lived, while the players who exert the least pressure, the flutists, were the shortest-lived.—New York World.

GOOD VENTILATION.

It Possesses an Actual Cash Value in the Workshop.

That proper ventilation in factories has an actual cash value has been well illustrated in the case of a firm of shirt and collar manufacturers in Berlin, Ont., where the following results have been obtained from four years' attention to the material welfare of the workers:

The amount of business made was doubled, wages increased 50 per cent, by cutting out "contingent help" the number of employees was reduced 20 per cent, the absences on account of sickness were reduced one-third. To the firm this meant that 430 employees did 90 per cent more work in one year than was accomplished by 522 employees in a similar period four years previous. To the workers it meant that $38,000 more in twelve months $25,000 more than 522 did during a previous twelve months.

Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology made a study of the amount of illness prevailing among the female operators in the telephone central at Cambridge, Mass., before and after the installation of a system of artificial ventilation. The figures obtained by him show that during the two winters preceding the change, when doors and windows had to be kept closed, on the average about one girl in twenty was absent daily because of illness. During the corresponding months of the following year, when the ventilation had been materially improved, only one girl in fifty was absent from duty each day.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Hope.

Hope is anticipation. It is an inherent feeling in mankind and a divine provision for the sustentation of interest in life. Hope is a chord which strikes pleasant desires for the future; it is every one's sunshine, the rainbow in the storm, the silver lining to the present cloud, a star set in the firmament of our lives, to brighten, lighten and cheer the way and differs in magnitude and brightness according to occasion. Hope is an antidote of misery, a cordial for the desponding and a chain with many links.—Nellie E. Mate.

Patience.

There's no music in a "rest," that I know of, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life melody, always talking of perseverance and courage and fortitude, but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest too.—Buskin.

A Good Digestion

JOINING THE ARMY

Opportunities That Are Open to the Enlisted Man.

HIS PAY AND HIS PROSPECTS.

Even as a Private He Can Run His Salary Up to $35 a Month, and as a "Noncom" He Can Double That and in Time Retire Rich and Pensioned.

There are many opportunities open to the man who enlists in the United States army and wears the uniform of Uncle Sam with honor to himself and his country. The pay is good, the food is good, and the chances for advancement are numerous. It is up to the individual man himself to make good and to take advantage of the situation.

Writing in the Columbian Magazine on army affairs, Edward Marshall in discussing the status of the enlisted man says:

Summarized, this is what a man who thinks of marching for his Uncle Samuel as an enlisted man has to consider:

On first enlistment the soldier for Old Glory nowadays gets $15 a month, far better pay, for instance, than the average clerk's, for board, lodging and clothing are furnished by the government. If he qualifies as marksman he adds $2 to his pay; if as a sharpshooter he gets $3 in addition; if as an expert rifleman a full third more. Thus he may at once get $20 monthly cash and find if he is able and keeps busy.

If he enlists as a musician he gets $21 monthly to start off with, the highest "rookie's" pay. In the signal corps, the hospital corps and the engineers' corps first class privates get $18 monthly, and second class privates get $15.

Upon enlistment every man is allowed $83.70 for his uniforms, etc., and afterward $13.54 twice annually. At least one-half the men save money on their clothing allowance, which is more than ample. Privates' pay increases $1 a month for each three year enlistment. An expert rifleman who never gets to be a petty officer, therefore, can run his pay up, with good conduct and intelligence, to $35 a month and all his necessities "found" in five enlistments covering fifteen years.

Noncommissioned officers are taken from the ranks on recommendation of their company or troop commanders and are often given their posts upon their first enlistments. These men are really well paid. A sergeant major is allotted to each regiment. He receives $45 monthly when he is appointed and $4 additional per month each time he re-enlists. Regimental commissary sergeants, regimental quartermaster sergeants and the three battalion sergeants in each regiment get the same high pay. Each company has a first sergeant at $45, with an increase of $4 upon re-enlistments; a second sergeant at $36, with $3 increase for each re-enlistment; a corporal at $15, with $3 each for re-enlistments. The government acts as banker for the soldiers, too, if they desire to have it, and noncommissioned officers have left the service with as much as $20,000 saved—not one, but many. If he sticks tight to the service for full thirty years a noncommissioned officer is entitled to retirement on pay ranging from one-half to three-quarters of his service pay. Seventy dollars monthly is not unusual pay for a "noncom" to retire on. And every year of service seen outside the United States counts as two years at a home post. A man, therefore, after fifteen years of service in the islands may retire on his half pay.

The food the "noncoms" and the other enlisted men are given is wholesome and well cooked, the medical attendance free and able, post and garrison schools have been provided at all posts for the primary branches, and at several posts trade schools have been established. A worthy man, no matter where he may be stationed, is almost certain to get transfer to a "school post" if he asks for it. Cooking, baking, blacksmithing, veterinary surgery, electrical and stationary engineering, all are taught at these trade schools, as well as many other things. Thus a boy who has had little chance to get an education may, after he has joined the army, get a very good one.

There seems to be but one thing which army life does not offer to the enlisted man. But that one thing is home. In its degree indeed the life of the enlisted man now offers more inducements than the life of the West Pointer. The commissioned officer's pay is small when his expenses and the effort he must make to get commissioned are considered, and, furthermore, the noncommissioned officer is not so subject to political influences as the West Pointer, who gives him his commands.

RIGHT ON THE JOB.

He Didn't Believe in Letting the Place Seek the Man.

A little story of success starting with the use of want ads. is contained in Business and the Bookkeeper. A Minneapolis manufacturer explains his liking for men who, even if they lack certain important qualities, have "initiative and originality."

The manufacturer, who at the time of which he spoke was just out of college, in Chicago and out of work, answered an advertisement offering a position, addressing, as instructed, "T24." He enclosed his reply in a large red envelope that could be seen and recognized at a distance. He was in the newspaper office early the following morning. In one of the boxes in which replies to advertisements were kept he saw his red envelope. He waited three hours until the letter in that box was given to a man calling for them. He followed the man to a west side factory. As the messenger laid the bunch of letters on the manager's desk the job hunter was standing by it. "I'm ready to go to work," he said.

Clean water and Lenox Soap—

That is the combination that suits the majority of women.

One is as important as the other. You cannot expect to have clean clothes if you do not use clean water. Nor will you get rid of the dirt, without injuring the clothes, if you do not use good soap.

Lenox Soap is good soap.

Lenox Soap—
"Just fits the hand"

The manager's reply was not "elegant," but in addition to being exclamationary it was interrogatory. How did he manage to present himself on the scene? The young man in need of the job pointed to his red envelope. The manager looked at it and looked at him. Then he turned to the messenger. "Find out who this young fellow is and put him to work," he said.

A Loophole Open.

"You're a fraud, sir," cried the indignant patient. "You guaranteed your medicine to cure after everything else failed, and—"

"Well, my dear sir," replied the fake medicine man, "probably you haven't tried everything else."—Philadelphia Press.

Simple Spot Remover.

This is a recipe for the very best "spot remover" you ever tried: Two ounces of castile soap shaved fine and two quarts of pure soft water. Boil till soap is thoroughly dissolved, strain and cool. When cool add one ounce sulphuric ether and two ounces of wood alcohol. Shake it well and keep corked.

It is now ready for use and will remove spots and stains from your clothing like magic, especially woolen garments.—National Magazine.

An Old Time Champion.

Robert Barclay Allardice, a Scotch captain in the British army, who was born in 1779 and died in 1854, was a noted pedestrian. At the age of fifteen he walked six miles within an hour. When he was twenty he covered 150 miles on foot in two days, and in June, 1801, in excessively hot weather he walked 300 miles in five days. His most surprising performance was walking 1,000 miles in 1,000 successive hours. A half million dollars was staked on the result.

APPENDICITIS

Cured Without Operation. Here is Sworn Proof

STATE OF MINNESOTA, ss.
COUNTY OF STEELE,
I, Richard Jahreis, of Owatonna, Minn., being first duly sworn, do testify that I am the person named in and who subscribed the following statement and the same is true of my own knowledge, in every particular: "I had severe pains in my right side, just above the Appendix. I went to the doctor and he pronounced my case Appendicitis and advised an operation. Instead I went to Zamboni Bros., Drug Store and bought a bottle of (Adler-ika) Treatment. After taking it the result was indeed wonderful. The pains stopped and I felt like a new man. I heartily recommend (Adler-ika) Treatment to anyone troubled with Appendicitis, as I know it has cured me." (Signed) RICHARD H. JAHREISS.

State Seal. Subscribed and sworn to before me June 29, 1905. J. NEWSALT, Notary Public, Steele County.

Appendicitis is becoming more and more, and everyone should know of this wonderfully successful treatment. A valuable book, showing many pictures of that curious and little known organ, the human Appendix, and telling how Appendicitis is caused, how it can be treated without operation, and how you can easily guard yourself against it, will be given FREE to anyone calling at our store.
